

There has been more sickness in the Valley this Spring, than usual, and several deaths; though the people in the other Valleys have been well generally. We have no reason why this Valley is more healthy in its location and character than any other, but as this is the place for the first arrival of the Saints, a greater prevalence of the infirm stop here, where they can more readily procure the comforts and necessities of life, and where they can find the harder portions of their journey more comfortable; and a greater number of them in our midst attract the attention of the sick and death more, in the vicinity of the temple, and passing through the country of the western states. sickness here is quite Drowned.

On Saturday last, a Mr. Douglas, of this town, started, with a load of passengers to Bethlehem, as we were told, and the bridge being gone over the slough between this and Trading Point, his team plunged into the deep water, and were struggling without being able to touch the bottom. Mr. D. being anxious to save his animals, sprang in to their aid, when he was probably kicked by the struggling horses, disabled, and sank down, came up once, sat again to rise no more. The passengers extricated themselves; but the team, wagon, and owner have not since been seen. They probably floated into the Missouri, and are gone. To us Mr. D. was a stranger; had just come into town, purchased him a home, was trying to get an honest living; but has been thus suddenly taken away, leaving an interesting family to mourn his loss. He was not of the Mormon people; yet had settled here with the design to remain.

Thus man ensnared and taken,
Off when prospects swell his hopes;
And the wife and child forsaken,
Caused by death's relentless stroke.
Dry your tears, ye weeping mourners,
Death, the tyrant, must be slain;
Though your hearts are sad with anguish,
Remember, your Lord, in triumph reigns.

Beware of Two Men.

They are suspicious characters, and roving about to steal and plunder. They have given no clear proofs of their guilt and depravity. They give no evidence of reform, but are believed to be lurking about, covered with blankets in the character of Indians. They steal Bacon, horses, and force cattle to swim the Missouri River. They leave their clothes by the River's bank, and are singularly secreted and in by places. It is said that a boy was whipped to death by one of them, and the other is a good Musician. We would withhold their names for their relation's sake; yet publish them to warn an outraged community to stamp the vipers under their feet. Cursed children, who have forsaken the right way, and gone after that which is unseasonable. 'Till they repent, the place where they are is cursed to them. They may look for evil and not for good. We would have saved and rescued them if they would; but alas! They have chosen their own way, and in their own doing shall they be ensnared.

Weather.

It has rained, thundered, and lightened almost every day for the last three weeks. Such a time has not been known since the settlement of this country. Every mill-dam is carried away, and some mills with much grain. Bridges are all swept—and much damage is done to fences and roads. But little grain is, as yet, put in the ground. Rain, rain, thunder and lightning enough to rend the heavens and the earth, are of almost every day's occurrence. Close and sultry.

East Indies.

Late advices from Bombay report, that the cholera is raging there with fearful violence. Twenty five hundred persons are said to have died with it in one month. The destroyer is on his way among all nations, sweeping with fearful violence, priest and people, without the least respect to party distinction, or sectional formality.

G. S. L. CITY, UTAH TERRITORY.

March 26th, 1851.

SPECIAL MESSAGE.

To the General Assembly of the State of Deseret.
GENTLEMEN:—Whereas, the Congress of the United States passed an Act, Sept. 9th, 1850, and received the approval of the President to "establish a Territorial Government for Utah," and made appropriations for erecting public buildings for said Territory, &c. The appointments under said law have been made, official announcements of which has not as yet been received, but are shortly expected; sufficient intelligence, however, has been received to justify us in preparing for the adoption and organization of the new Government under said Act.

I have therefore thought proper to suggest to you, previous to your final adjournment, the propriety of making such arrangements, as in wisdom you may consider necessary, in view of the aforesaid Act of Congress; that as little inconvenience as possible may arise in the change of Governmental affairs, and in relation to the organization of the Territorial Government, for erecting public buildings for said Territory, &c.
And now, upon the dissolving of this Legislature, permit me to add, the industry and unanimity which have ever characterized your efforts, and contributed so much to the pre-eminent success of this Government, will, in all future time, be a source of gratification to all; and whatever may be the career and destiny of this young, but growing Republic, we can ever carry with us the proud satisfaction of having erected, established, and maintained a peaceful, quiet, yet energetic Government, under the benign auspices of which, unparalleled prosperity has showered her blessings upon every interest.

With sentiments of the highest esteem and gratitude to the Giver of all good for His kind blessings, I remain,
Respectfully yours,
BRIGHAM YOUNG,
Governor.

The Legislature of Deseret, in joint session, March 28th, 1851, unanimously passed the following Preamble and Resolutions, pertaining to the organization of a Territorial Government for Utah:

PREAMBLE.

Whereas, in the winter and spring of A. D. 1849, the people of this Territory did form and establish a Provisional State Government, until the United States Congress should otherwise provide by law for the Government of this Territory; and

Whereas, it was under this authority and by virtue thereof, that this body have acted and legislated, for and in behalf of the people of said State, now Utah Territory; and Whereas, the United States Congress has finally legislated in behalf of this Territory, by passing an Act for the organization of the Territory of Utah; making appropriations for public buildings; and extending the Constitution of the United States over said Territory; and

Whereas, previous to the first election under said law, the census has to be taken, and apportionments made, which will necessarily consume much time; and

Whereas, the public buildings for said Territory are very much needed, and the United States Congress having made an appropriation of twenty thousand dollars towards defraying the expense thereof, and in order to facilitate the speedy erection of said public buildings for the use of the Territory, and further promote the mutual and easy organization of said Territorial Government.

Therefore, he it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Deseret.

1. That we cheerfully and cordially accept of the legislation of Congress in the Act to establish a Territorial Government for Utah.

2. That we welcome the Constitution of the United States—the legacy of our fathers—over this Territory.

3. That all officers under the Provisional State Government of Deseret, are hereby requested to furnish their successors in office every facility in their power, by returning and delivering unto them public documents, laws, ordinances, and dockets, that may or can be of any use or benefit to their said successors in office.

4. That Union Square, in G. S. L. City, be devoted for the use of public buildings of said Territory.

5. That Gov. B. Young be our agent to make drafts upon the treasury of the United States for the amount appropriated for said buildings, and to take such other measures as he shall deem proper for their immediate erection.

6. That we appoint an architect to draft designs, and a committee of one, to superintend the erection of said buildings.

7. That Truman O. Angel, of said City, be said Architect; and Daniel H. Wells, of said City, the committee; and that they proceed immediately to the designing and erection of said buildings.

8. That, whereas, the State House in Great Salt Lake City having been originally designed for a "Council House," and erected by and at the expense of the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints," for the purpose, as well as to accommodate the Provisional Government,—that we now do relinquish unto said Church the aforesaid building; tendering unto them our thanks for the free use thereof, during the past session.

9. That we fix upon Saturday, the 5th day of April next, for the adjustment and final dissolving of the General Assembly of the State of Deseret.

H. C. KIMBALL,

President of the Senate.

J. M. GRANT,

Speaker of the House.

T. BULLOCK, Clerk.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 5th.

The South Carolina Southern Rights Association Convention, composed of delegates appointed by the various Southern Rights Associations of the State, met in this City and was duly organized by the appointment of the following officers: President Ex-Gov. C. Schomburgk, J. J. Ashen, N. L. Griffin, J. W. Simpson, R. H. Goodwin, B. K. Hannegan, and W. H. Gist; Secretaries, the Editors of the Greenville Mountaineer, Camden Journal, Black River Journal, Edgefield Advertiser, Chester Standard and J. C. Walker.

There are forty associations represented, and the Convention is composed of four hundred and thirty-one delegates.

The President, ex-Governor Richardson, on taking the chair, calmly, but temperately, reviewed the position of affairs. He considered that southern institutions, under existing circumstances, could not last twenty years. He alluded forcibly to the disregard of blood and treasure expended in the acquisition of territory, and her subsequent exclusion from those territories, and said, when dangers threatening our existence thus reach our very doors, it was time to arm against them. It was futile to hope that the Constitution, based upon such legislation, could survive. Concession could yield nothing to its support. The deliberations of the Convention, he said, should be confined to the when, where and how resistance should be made, though he supposed it should not be adopted rashly. He, however, would not discuss that, as he did not desire to baffle them. He loved the Union; he did not believe that there was an amateur disunionist among them; he advocated union among ourselves; if any are forming in our rear, he said, let us await their approach. If in our van, let us make up to them. It has been said that whom God and Nature join together, men could not put asunder; but the reverse may also be applied. Those whom God and Nature has put asunder, let no man join together. He then argued at length on the want of affinity between the two sections of country, and advised earnest and temperate deliberation.

The Convention then adjourned. The votes to-morrow will settle the question of nullification. The President is a strong Union man. The Convention embraces many men of talents.

(By the O'Reilly Line.)

CHARLESTON, May 6th.

Proceedings in the Convention to-day authorize us to announce that a separate State action will certainly triumph by an overwhelming majority. The reception of Rhett's resolution has been fearfully enthusiastic. Langdon Cheves and Judge Butler, who were in favor of moderation, are borne down. South Carolina is fixed for secession. Great excitement has prevailed to-day throughout the City.

Still Later.

CHARLESTON, May 7th.

Langdon Cheves has addressed the Convention, opposing the separate action of South Carolina. The Convention have reported addresses and resolutions, which have not yet come up for consideration. The number of delegates to-day was 363, representing all parts of the State.

Mormons.

The steamer Atlantic arrived yesterday morning from New Orleans, having on board two hundred and forty Mormon emigrants. This company sailed from Liverpool on board the ship Olympus. They had a very prosperous and healthy voyage, having but two deaths, and those young children. There being several passengers on board the ship who did not belong to the Mormon faith, the Mormons began the work of preaching and proselyting; and their efforts were not unfruitful, for they succeeded in gaining over to their faith about fifty persons, who were baptized on board the ship. Part of those who arrived on the Atlantic were detained at the Quarantine, on account of a man being sick who was supposed to be cholera.

The Statesman did not leave yesterday, as was stated, but is expected to leave to-day, having on board two hundred passengers. These are mostly Mormon emigrants, who arrived here a few days ago from the New England States, and the remainder are from this city, among whom is Alexander Robbins, the late President of this city.

The Mormons in this city and neighborhood number about three thousand. They have a good organization, the head of which is styled a President; the present incumbent is Elder Thomas Wrigley. They hold meetings regularly on Sundays, at Concert Hall. [Organ and Revellie, May 9th, 1851.]

POETRY.

Liking and Disliking.

BY CHAS. SWAIN.

Ye who know the reason, tell me,
How it is that instinct still
Prompts the heart to like--or not like--
At its own capricious will?
Tell me by what hidden magic
Our impressions first are led
Into likings--or dislikings--
Oft before a word is said?

Why should smiles sometimes repel us;
Bright eyes turn our feelings cold?
What is that which comes to tell us
All that glitters is not gold?
Oh, no feature, plain or striking,
But a power we cannot shun,
Prompts our liking, or disliking,
Ere acquaintance hath begun!

It is instinct--or some spirit
Which prompts us and controls
Every impulse we inherit
By some sympathy of souls?
Is it instinct? Is it nature?
Or some freak or fault of chance,
Which our liking or disliking,
Limits to a single glance?

Like presentiment of danger,
Through the sky no shadow flings?
Or that finer sense, still stranger,
Of unseen--naughtier things?
Is it--oh, can no one tell me
No one show sufficient cause
Why our likings--and dislikings--
Have their own instinctive laws?

MISCELLANY.

Falling in Love.

BY NED ALBERO.

Well, here I am like a bank panic. This is me clean up to the handle, and chuck up to the brim. How'd do? As for myself I'm like Atherton's boy, when he slipped in the bar'l of soft soap--sluck as a bear's ribs. Now it's morn' wonder to observe the doin's o' human nature. I've played hoss with a trip hammer, an' keen a hen hawk whet his bill against a pile o' clam shells. But when it comes to this ere love business, I swan to man it gits me awful. Now if a fel'r happens to ring in with a leechy chick-a-dee-dee he's got to either come to the pint, or pack up his duds an' strike out for parts unknown. I went to see a little crowd of a gal onst. Betsy Davis, and--oh Je ru sa lem, she was a scrouger. Talk 'bout Moses in the bull-rushes, Jehu if a fel'er'd see that gal onst he'd melt shure. She could give sich patent looks, and kinder snicker so all-fired it would take a pretty strong constitutioned feller to stand it. Now, I'm member onst I went to see that gal one night, when the old folks was gone to camp meefin', an' the young uns had gone to roost up in the cock loft. When I got there, I hitched the nag to the fence elevated my standin' collar to look kinder scrumschus, an' then I spurgins in as stinky as a bee-hive an' twice as natural. Betsy--bless her leetle shadder, was mixing up buckwheat cakes for mornin'. Jest as quick as she seen me she color'd up as red as a biled beet. I commenced shakin' like a bob tailed hen with the palsy, an' kinder backed out; 'cause if she'd gin another sich look, I'd been a gone goshin. I'd got so fur, an' I'd just concluded I'd buck up or swing for't. So I took a cheer an' set down 'bout a rod from Bets an' she squatted 'bout a rod from me, on a milk pail, she commenced a snickerin' an' I commenced lookin' kinder most awful bilious. Oh thunder an' lightning! how I did feel, I was the darndest predicament. Jest as I 'so a goin' to say sunthin' she bust out a jiggin'. Je-whittaker-whew! I lay, I was excited so I jest give her a smack s-o-o-p as meek and lowly as a mule kitten! double distilled essence o' boardhouse! 'twas sweeter'n cider out'n the bung o' a bar'l O Jupiter H Codfish! if a feller could eat such things with a spoon! I was fallin' in love by the pailfull, I could 'nt stan' it--so I picked up my hat and skated. Betsy was too big a pile o' mus'melons for the present generation, but there's Beck Wilson, she's most as fantailizin' as she is. Little like Hewitt courted that gal, but it others made him kinder sickly. He had to drop off, 'cause he said he'd be in love to the eyebrows if he hung to it. An' there's Phebe Macumber's the bare-footed one--Sufferonny, she's considerable, but she piles on the love so almighty thick. Lawd! when she gets agoin' she's a perfect Israel an' a whole team. She an' one o' Peterkin's boys went to a dance, an' when they got there she stuck fast in the door, she could'n't budge an inch, so the fellers went to kissin'. One feller kissed her sixty-nine times, an' 'cause he would'n't do it some more she had lip enough to cut a pair of boot legs off of. The feller had to navigate, 'cause he said he could'n't do it any more, her breath tasted jest like onions. The great fool or't to pilled another dozen, it would'n't hurt him a mite. Now there's Nancy Hewitt--like's sister, a feller could kiss her now till the day o' Pentecost, but she'd never git sufficient. That's the identical gal that kicked a nanny goat to death in a few rounds, an' she can smako a bar'l o' cider a rod jest as easy. Her old man had a couple o' almighty cross bone hunters, an' when a feller'd show himself 'bout them latitudes he'd git himself nipped the cussedest.

One dandyfied lookin' kinder of a sucker, a regular pusillanimous bob-tailed pimp o' misery, went to saying sunthin' to Nance 'bout nuptial affairs. It riz Nance rise up to the hub, and she stickt the dogs on him. Sled crooks an' sweet briars, I never see a feller shoot so; since I tramped the face o' this continental arth. Nance hav a gridiron at him when he's leavin'. It struck him plum, an' he bounced 10 foot every pop. The way he lifted his walkin' beams an' paddled was some in a trip hammer. An' now in conclusion, I'd advise fellers not to get any further in the eyebrows, 'cause if they do they've got to hitch on or make themselves acquainted with the hemp cravat business, an' that's worse'n a thevly jander, 'specially if he's got a sore throat. An' as for the gals, you little tansilizin' chicks, you, I hope to be actually used up if I can think o' anything good enough to say.

Mind Against Mind.

There is a strong disposition in men of opposite minds to dispise each other. A grave man cannot conceive what is the use of wit in society; a person who takes a strong, common sense view of the subject, is for pushing out by the head and shoulders, an ingenious theorist who catches at the slightest and faintest analogies; and another man who scents the ridiculous from afar, will hold no commerce with him who tests exquisitely the fine feeling of the heart, and is alive to nothing else; whereas, talents is talent, and mind is mind, in all its branches. Wit gives to life one of its best flavors; common sense leads to immediate action, and gives society its daily motion; large and comprehensive views of its annual rotation; ridicule chastises folly and impudence, and keeps men in their proper sphere; subtlety seizes hold of the fine threads of truth, analogy darts away to the most sublime discoveries; feeling paints all the exquisite passions of man's soul, and rewards him by a thousand inward visitations for the sorrows that come from without. God made it all. It is all good! We must despise no sort of talent; they all have their separate duties and uses; and all the happiness of man for their object; they all improve, exalt, and gladden life.

Eloquence of a Thunderer.

One Paul Denton, a Methodist preacher in Texas, advertised a barbecue, with better liquor than usually furnished. When people were assembled, a desperado in the crowd cried out, "Mr. Paul Denton, your reverence has lied. You promised us not only a good barbecue, but better liquor. Where is the liquor?" "There!" answered the missionary, in tones of thunder, and (says a Yankee contemporary) pointed his motionless finger at the matchless double spring, gushing up in two strong columns, with a sound like a shout of joy from the bosom of the earth. "There!" he repeated, with a look terrible as the lightning, (while his enemy actually trembled on his feet,) "there is the liquor which God the Eternal, brews for all his children!"

Notin the shimmering still, over smoky fires, choked with poisonous gasses, and surrounded with the stench of sickening odors and rank corruptions, doth your Father in heaven prepare this precious essence of life, the pure cold water; but in the green glade and grassy dell where the red deer wanders, and the child loves to play--there God brews it; and down, low down in the deepest valleys, where the fountains murmur and the rills sing, and high upon the tall mountain tops, where the naked granite glitters like gold in the sun, where the storm cloud broods and the thunder storms crash, and away, far out on the wide, wild sea, where the hurricane howls music, and the big waves roar the chorus, sweeping the march of God--there he brews it, that beverage of life--healthful water.

And every where it is a thing of beauty; gleaming in the dew-drop singing in the summer rain; shining in the ice gem, till the trees all seem turned to living jewels; spreading a golden veil over the setting sun; or a white gauze around the midnight moon; sporting in the cataract; sleeping in the glacier; dancing in the hail showers; folding its bright snow curtains softly about the wintry world; and weaving the many-colored iris, that scarp's zone of the sky--whose warp is the rain-drop of earth, whose woof is the sun beam of heaven--all checked over with the celestial flowers, by the mystic hand of refraction. Still always it is beautiful--that blessed life water! No poison bubbles on its brink; its foam brings no madness or murder; no blood stains its liquid glass; pale widows and starving orphans weep no burning tears in its depths; no drunkard's shrieking ghost from the grave curses it in words of eternal despair! Speak out my friends! would you exchange it for the demons drink alcohol? A shout like the roar of a tempest answered--"No!"

Growlers.

There is a class of men in every community who go about with vinegar faces, growling because some body feels above them; or because they are not appreciated as they should be, and who have a constant quarrel with their destiny. These men usually have made a very grave mistake in the estimate of their abilities, or are mitigated asses. In either case they are unfortunate. Wherever this fault-finding with one's condition or position occurs there is always a want of self-respect. If people despise you, do not tell of it all over town, if you are smart show it. Do something and keep doing. If you are a right down clever fellow wash the wornwood off your face, and show your good will by your deeds. Then, if people feel above you get straight off and feel above them. If they turn up their noses because you are a mechanic or a farmer or a shop boy turn up yours a notch higher. If they swell when they pass you in the street swell yourself and if this does not fetch them, conclude very good naturedly that they are unworthy of your acquaintance, and pity them for missing such a capital chance to get into good society.

Society never estimates a man at what he imagines himself to be. He must show himself to be possessed of self-respect, independence, energy to will and to do, and a good sound heart. These qualities and possessions will "put him through."

Who blames a man for feeling above those who are mean enough to go round like babies telling how people abuse them and whining because society will not take them by the collar and drag them into decency. [Capital Reporter.]

Three students at college met an aged countryman, and wishing to have a little sport with him, thus accosted him. The first said--"Good morning father Abraham," the second, "Good morning father Isaac," and the third, "Good morning father Jacob," the old gentleman replied, "I am neither Abraham, Isaac, nor Jacob, but I am the son of Kish, who went to seek his father's name, and lo! I have found three of them."

"Why is a young lady like an Ironstone Printer?" Because she is very careful in printing her name.

Dubuque, Fort Des Moines, and Council Bluffs.

The eastern and western termini of the great Iowa Railroad are indicated by these points not only by public opinion, but by the topography of the country through which a central road hence westward must pass. In view of this fact, it becomes a matter of some consequence to the people of Fort Des Moines and Council Bluffs vicinities to shape their future action so as to facilitate this result desirable alike to them and to Dubuque. They should not only keep themselves well informed of what is being done here to effect this object, but they should also co-operate, if not pecuniarily at least in sentiment and desire, with whatever has a tendency to unite them to the east through Dubuque.

When the Dubuque and Keokuk railroad North reaches Cedar Rapids, the people westward should be ready to carry it forward on the way towards its final destination on the shores of the pacific. Every exertion short of doing violence to one's self, should be devoted to this object, for without this, its successful accomplishment will be too long deferred. Some may say that the country westward will not support a railroad. We reply, make the road and it will support the country. It will be like giving a soul to a new-born child, out which it was a mere corpse--a nothing in existence--but with it it becomes a being conscious of life. So will it be with our western prairies, when the shrill whistle of the locomotive signals the coming of the masses of human beings continually moving westward in search of freer homes.

Without human appendages the most beautiful is but a blank in existence. Its foliage has no beauty unless gazed upon by a human eye, its herbage but little taste except for human palates. For man were they specially formed. He alone can enjoy their beauty and their use, and he above all others should possess them.

Every thing that facilitates this beneficent design should be undertaken by the race and carried into effect, and nothing seems to be more certain of accomplishing this design than the construction of a means of ingress and egress by which mankind can enter upon their great inheritance from the Father, and send back into the world behind them the fruits of their industry. For this we want a railroad through our State to Council Bluffs on the Missouri. It is the duty of the present age to accomplish this result it will be for those who appear upon the stage of life farther west to carry it on to its final and fixed destination. [Dubuque Herald.]

Live for Something.

Thousands of men breathe, move and live--pass off the stage of life and are heard of no more. Why? They did not a particle of good in the world; and none were blessed by them, none could point to them as the justness of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spoke could be recalled, and so they perished, their light went out in darkness, and they were not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. Will you thus live and die, O man immortal! Live for something. Do good and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name by kindness, love and mercy, on the hearts of thousands you come in contact year by year, and you never will be forgotten. No, your name--your deeds--will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind, and the stars on the brow of the evening. Good deeds will shine as brightly on the earth as the stars of heaven. [Dr. Chalmers.]

What we Call Duties.

Every man ought to pay his debts--if he can.

Every man ought to help his neighbor--if he can.

Every young man and woman ought to get married--if they can.

Every representative in Congress, and the legislature ought to inform their constituents what they are doing--if they can.

Every man should do his work to please his customers--if he can.

Every wife should sometimes hold her tongue--if she can.

Every lawyer should tell the truth--if he can.

Every preacher of the gospel should be a Christian--if he can.

And finally every reader should add to the above something good--if he can.

More Manuscripts Discovered.

We learn from a Constantinople letter of the 15th ult., in the Risorgimento of Turin, that public attention has been greatly excited there, by the discovery of an immense treasure of Greek manuscripts, of the highest antiquity, found by a learned Greek of the name of rimondini, in a cave situated at the foot of Mount Athos. According to this account, the importance of this discovery is incalculable, since it brings to light a vast quantity of celebrated works quoted by various ancient writers, and hitherto deemed entirely lost. They furnish, as may be imagined, an extensive list of proper names, calculated to throw great light upon many obscure periods of history. Among these precious volumes, which are composed of very thin membranes, (the nature of which is not stated,) filled with microscopic characters, some are calculated to give a complete interpretation of hieroglyphic writing, the fortunate discoverer having already successfully applied them to the interpretation of the inscriptions engraved on the obelisk of the Hippodrome at Constantinople.

BY A. N. B.

My first, is an element
Externally the same;
Four letters placed correctly,
Will solve you its name.
My second's a fine miniature,
Of goodness absolute;
Filling bridge and chain,
From a God to a Devil!

My whole when combined,
To my first, is a power;
And exert all its force,
In influence to destroy.

THE GOLD REGIONS.

COUNCIL BLUFFS AGENCY FERRY.
THIS FERRY has now been a successful operation for two years, and has given a universal satisfaction to the emigrants and traveling public in general. It is the best crossing on the Missouri river. Proof--Not a dollar's worth of property has been lost at this ferry, during the last five years' heavy emigration. It is the nearest route to California, Oregon and Salt Lake. Proof--The first overland emigrants that arrived at Sacramento, this season, made the trip in fifty-five days from Council Bluffs. It is the healthiest route. Proof--Not a single case of Cholera has occurred on the north side of the Plains, while on the south side, this dreadful disease had spread gloom and desolation beyond the worst newspaper accounts that have been published. Some six hundred according to the last information we can obtain have died on the ferry daily during the season. Beware of the imitations in the river. For further particulars as to the route, we refer you to the best and most correct maps, and to a directory which will be published soon. WHEELING, CLARK & CO. Council Bluffs, March 7, 1851.
